

HEAD OF THE CLASS

Finding the right school can be overwhelming for parents, especially when they are choosing from the more than 350 private schools in the San Diego County area. Meeting the head of school is usually missed in this process. Our special advertising section Head of the Class is the perfect place for our readers to get to know your head of school and the individual philosophy, morals and principles that are the foundation of your school's precious name. Head of the Class will build a relationship with curious parents and further your school's reputation amongst our readers.

Good Shepherd Episcopal School serves 575 students in PreK - 8th grade and provides each student the kind of vigorous experience parents should expect in Dallas. With our signature programs in Spanish, Fine Arts, Technology and Classroom of the Earth, we start and end with your kids. We help them figure out their biggest question: why? Why are they here? We have 8 years to help them form their why, before the world of high school and college asks them what! We believe that a good why beats a what any day. Your children come as children and leave as leaders and amazing people. Just ask Greenhill, Hockaday, Jesuit, Parish, St. Mark's, Ursuline and the other top schools our graduates go on to from GSES.

The Highlands School is a traditional pre-K3 through 12th grade Catholic college preparatory school offering gender-specific education on a co-ed campus (K-12th grade). Our smaller school environment affords our students a higher teacher to student ratio, more opportunities to participate in extracurricular and sports activities, and creates a marvelous family atmosphere that fosters the flourishing of the individual.

Our school is best known for its strong academics and spiritually enriching environment. This is the fruit of our four-staged Integral Formation methodology, which focuses on the intellectual, spiritual, apostolic and character formation of each student. Highlighting this is the recognition the high school has received by being named to the National Top 50 Catholic High School Honor Roll every year since 2004.

In all grade levels, our distinguished faculty and dedicated formation teams foster Christian virtues and character, whether in our classrooms, our student-run clubs, or our competitive sports.
